HOLTER, Dr. KURT

His wife, née Oser(?), is native of Steyr, Upper Austria; he studied Arabic in the Oriental Institute in Vienna, where source first met him; Holter and source were together from 1935-1937 in the Library School of the National Library in Vienna; from 1936 on, he cooperated with the Extension Institute of the Oriental Institute, of which source was in charge; source has thus known him fairly well for c. four years / so far as source is competent to judge, Holter is very good in his field (Islamic art), with satisfactory knowledge of Arabic; his contributions are sound, but hardly inspiring; source feels sure Holter has considerable administrative ability and fills his library post competently/ during last years of the Republic, Dr. Holter's brother had difficulties because of connections with Nazis; after Nazis took over Austria, it developed that Dr. Holter had been leader of the illegal Nazi organization in the National Library, an activity
