the 10th Sep.

Gd. Bn., Potsdam

This unit was subordinate to the Counterintelligence Administration, GSFG, in Potsdam. It served as a guard unit for the compound and the field prison located in the compound, and personnel occasionally escorted prisoners being returned to the USSR as far as Brest-Litovsk.

2.

[redacted] the organization of the 10th Sep. Gd. Bn., with the exception of its guard platoons and MG platoons. The EM strengths given for guard companies were estimated and did not constitute actual strength figures. [redacted] the guard companies and Housekeeping Plat. were up to strength, but the MT Plat. should have had more personnel. [redacted] there were not enough vehicles in the battalion to move all the personnel and equipment at one time.

(4) Guard Co. x 3

(a) Each guard company consisted of:

1. CO - captain or major
 2. Political Off. - lieutenant
 3. Co. Hq. -
 - a. 1st Sgt. - master sergeant
 - b. Medical Aid Man - sergeant
 - c. Company Clerk - private
 - d. Company Supply Clerk (Kaptenarmus) - private
 4. Guard Plat. x 2
 - a. Plat. Ldr. - lieutenant
 - b. Plat. Sgt. - senior sergeant
 - c. Three squads, with one NCO squad leader and 10 privates in each squad
 5. MG Plat.
 - a. Plat. Ldr. - lieutenant
 - b. Plat. Sgt. - senior sergeant
 - c. LMG Sqd. x 2 - one NCO squad leader and 10 privates in each squad
 - d. HMG Sqd. - one NCO squad leader and either 9 or 12 privates.
- (b) With the exception of the first sergeants of the 1st and 2d Cos., and the Medical Aid Man, 1st Co., who were armed with 7.62-mm TT-M33 Tokarev pistols by virtue of "sverkhsrochnik" status, all EM in the guard platoons were armed with the 7.62-mm PPSH SMG.
- (c) Each LMG squad had five 7.62-mm DP Degtyarev LMGs. One private served as gunner and another private, armed with a 7.62-mm PPSH SMG, served as assistant gunner.
- (d) The HMG Sqd. contained either three or four 7.62-mm M1943 Goryunov HMGs. Each HMG was serviced by three privates - the gunner, assistant, and ammunition bearer. The assistant and the ammunition bearer were armed with 7.62 mm PPSH SMGs.

(5) Miscellaneous

- (a) [redacted] cooks were located and rotated in the Housekeeping Plat. and in the companies. This made it impossible to keep track of their number. [redacted] 25X1
- [redacted] A total of 10 were assigned to the battalion.

- (b) Eight privates were assigned daily from the duty company to pull KP for the entire battalion. 25X1
- (c) The battalion had a field kitchen (type unknown) parked in one of the motor pool sheds for stand-by purposes. [redacted] the kitchen could not have serviced the entire battalion in an emergency. 25X1
- (d) At the time of the 17 June uprisings in Berlin, EM who were armed with the SMG were issued two drums each containing 72 rounds of ammunition. After the emergency was declared over, the ammunition was returned. [redacted] it was returned on or after 28 June. 25X1
- (e) Individual EM arms were kept in a rack, under lock and key, in the billets of each Gd. Co. The company CQ had the key to the rack at all times. EM individual weapons of EM in the MT and Housekeeping Plats. were kept in a rack at the MT Plat. billet. The platoon CQ had the key to the rack at all times. Officers' pistols were locked in an arms room at the Bn. HQ building. [redacted] the condition of weapons in the battalion was fair to good. 25X1
- (f) A German concern in Potsdam handled the battalion laundry. [redacted] all Soviet units in Potsdam turned in laundry at the same point. Regulations called for linen and laundry exchange every 10 days for EM of Gd. Cos. and every week for EM who were technical workers (i.e. mechanics, drivers, etc.) Occasionally, the period was extended several days because laundry from the previous period had not been returned to the unit in time. 25X1

b. Weapons (as of June 1954)

(1) Individual Weapons

Type	Total (In Battalion)	Remarks
Pistol, 7.62-mm, Tokarev TT-33	36	Used as sidearms by all officers in the battalion. "Sverkhsrochniki" could draw these pistols as a prestige measure. 25X1 [redacted] In the event of hostilities, "sverkhsrochniki" would have to turn in their pistols and draw their normal T/O weapons.
SMG, 7.62-mm PPSH	211	T/O weapon for all EM in the battalion except machine gunners and "sverkhsrochniki". In February 1954 EM of the Housekeeping Plat. and MT Plat. turned in their SMG's and drew 7.62-mm M1944 Mossin-Nagant carbines. No reasons were given for the exchange.
