1. Juan Marinello, Cuban Communist leader and one of the organizers of the Latin American Congress for Peace and Democracy to be held in Mexico ([REDACTED] 25X1A2g) recently wrote Victorio Codovilla and Rodolfo Ghioldi, co-leaders of the Communist Party of Argentina (CPA), to request that the CPA sponsor an intensive propaganda campaign in favor of the forthcoming congress. Marinello cautioned them to avoid having it appear that the campaign stemmed directly from the Party. He suggested that a special commission of Argentine intellectuals, writers, artists, and students be organized to further the project, and advised that various political parties and groups be represented on the commission in order to disguise CPA sponsorship.
2. The Federacion Universitaria Argentina (FUA), a Communist-influenced student group which is relatively inactive during the summer months, is the only male-dominated Communist organization which has so far initiated an active campaign in support of the congress. Communist women have been continuing their pro-congress propaganda and have been collecting funds to finance the Argentine delegates (not yet appointed) to the congress ([REDACTED])
