Troops in Esztergom.

1. Up to late August 1950, an engineer unit, a signal unit and a motorized unit, each of which had the approximate strength of a company, were accommodated in the Vak Bottyan Barracks on the east side of Kossuth Lajos Street and the north side of Bela Kiraly Street, Esztergom (Q 48/2 27).
2. The engineer unit moved into the reconditioned installation in late 1948. The troops of the unit wore dark-green service color. More than about 100 troops were never observed at any one time. A major was the ranking officer. Besides submachine guns and rifles, machine guns on two-wheel carts were sometimes observed. _____ 50X1-HUM
_____ the superior headquarters of the unit was a tank unit stationed in Camp Esztergom (Q 48/2 26). The engineer unit was equipped with Raba trucks and some US-made jeeps and trucks. (1) 50X1-HUM
3. The signal unit arrived at the installation in 1949. Its personnel wore black service color and lightning insignia. A senior lieutenant was the ranking officer. More than about 60 troops were never observed to move out at any one time. The unit was equipped with 1.5-ton personnel carriers. (2)
4. In the summer of 1949, a motorized unit, the vehicles of which were shuttling between the city of Esztergom and Camp Esztergom at all times, arrived at the installation. About a dozen Raba trucks and some jeeps and motorcycles were observed with the unit. The troops of the unit wore wing-wheel insignia and brown service color.
5. In the spring of 1950 the establishment of an engineer training field was started in the southwestern portion of the Danube island, about 2 km northwest of the Esztergom railroad station. The portion of the island was blocked by a wire fence. Only a quantity of lumber, some old assault boats and 30 to 40 small skiffs were observed there in August 1950. No pontoons or bridge components were seen.
