- Between 12 and 17 April 1951, radio installations located in the vicinity of the Wittstock airfield were reconnoitered for evidence of the presence of an air defense center. Four Dumba radar sets were seen. Two sets were observed at their previous locations, one 100 meters west of the garages and the other 30 meters south of the MVD building. The two other sets were seen for the first time. One set was located on hill No 92, 600 meters north-northeast of the church in Biesen (N 54/U 12) and the other one was on Rockstaedter Berg, Hill No 95, 2 km west of Randow (N 54/U 21). * A truck was dug into the ground near the radar set north-northeast of Biesen. No landing beacons were seen. For the first time no cables were seen leading to the two sets. All four installations were occupied by soldiers wearing black-bordered blue epaulets.
- A copybook containing the names of patients and medical information was found in the hospital at the airfield. The following names of patients treated in the hospital, and some dates of dismissal between 9 January and 27 February 1951 are entered in the copybook:

* Comment. Only two Dumbo radar sets had been previously seen in Wittstock and their locations reported. 25X1A

25X1A

For wire connections to these sets, see Annex 1. The reasons for the establishment of additional sets is not known. The presence of four radar sets possibly indicates that an air defense center is located in Wittstock. It has been previously observed that only two Dumbo sets were located near the fighter corps headquarters in Wittenberg.

25X1C

** Comment. a ground unit at the 25X1C Wittstock airfield. It is not known to which units the individual soldiers are assigned.
