FROM:

SUBJECT:

Data for PRC(I) Support

1. You may find the data in the attached charts to be helpful in support of upcoming PRC(I) deliberations.

2. A word of caution: as you know, one should not assume a direct relationship between resource allocation and requirements or priorities. As your Data Support Group stated accurately in its CIRIS publication dated August 1977, comparisons of resource allocations to priorities must be treated with reserve because of the many factors which influence the expense, adequacy, timeliness, and completeness of intelligence efforts; i.e., one must bear in mind that magnitude of resource allocation is not a measure of satisfaction achieved.
