Harvard East Asia

January 21, 1982

Mr. Herbert Levin
National Intelligence Officer - East Asia
National Intelligence Council
Central Intelligence Agency Headquarters
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Levin,

This is to follow-up on our recent telephone conversation. On Friday, May 7, 1982 we will hold the thirteenth in our series of Harvard-East Asia conferences. The topic will be the emerging role in East Asia of Taiwan and South Korea, and we cordially invite you to address the meeting. The audience will consist primarily of senior corporate executives, and the meeting format is designed to encourage extensive discussion among and between the speakers and the audience.

The conference proceedings are taped. The verbatim record is supplemented by notes taken by rapporteurs. Based on these, a summary of the discussions is prepared in draft form and sent to each speaker for comments and revisions. The revised versions are then compiled into a Summary Proceedings, and distributed only to those who attended the conference. Over the course of our conference series a government official has on rare occasions asked that his remarks be off the record. We naturally would like the conference record to be complete. But we also realize that some of our speakers do operate within institutional constraints, and we of course will respect them.

The conference will be held on the Harvard University campus, and we will cover your travel expenses.

Ezra Vogel and I very much hope you will be able to join us. Please let me know should you have any questions. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Patrick G. Maddox
Executive Director
