THE CENTRAL REFERENCE SERVICE (CRS)

General

The Central Reference Service (CRS) in the Directorate of Intelligence is the Agency's intelligence reference support facility. CRS receives the principal series of intelligence issuances and disseminates the individual reports directly to Agency elements in response to their requirements and interests. It also indexes and stores in its extensive files, supported by both manual and electronic data processing systems, vast quantities of information for future retrieval. As explained in this handbook, CRS serves the Agency and the Intelligence Community in many other ways, including the production of biographic intelligence; the procurement of foreign publications, films, photographs and videotapes; and the maintenance of a library of open-source publications. It is also actively involved, both internally and in cooperation with the Community, in developing more efficient information handling systems.

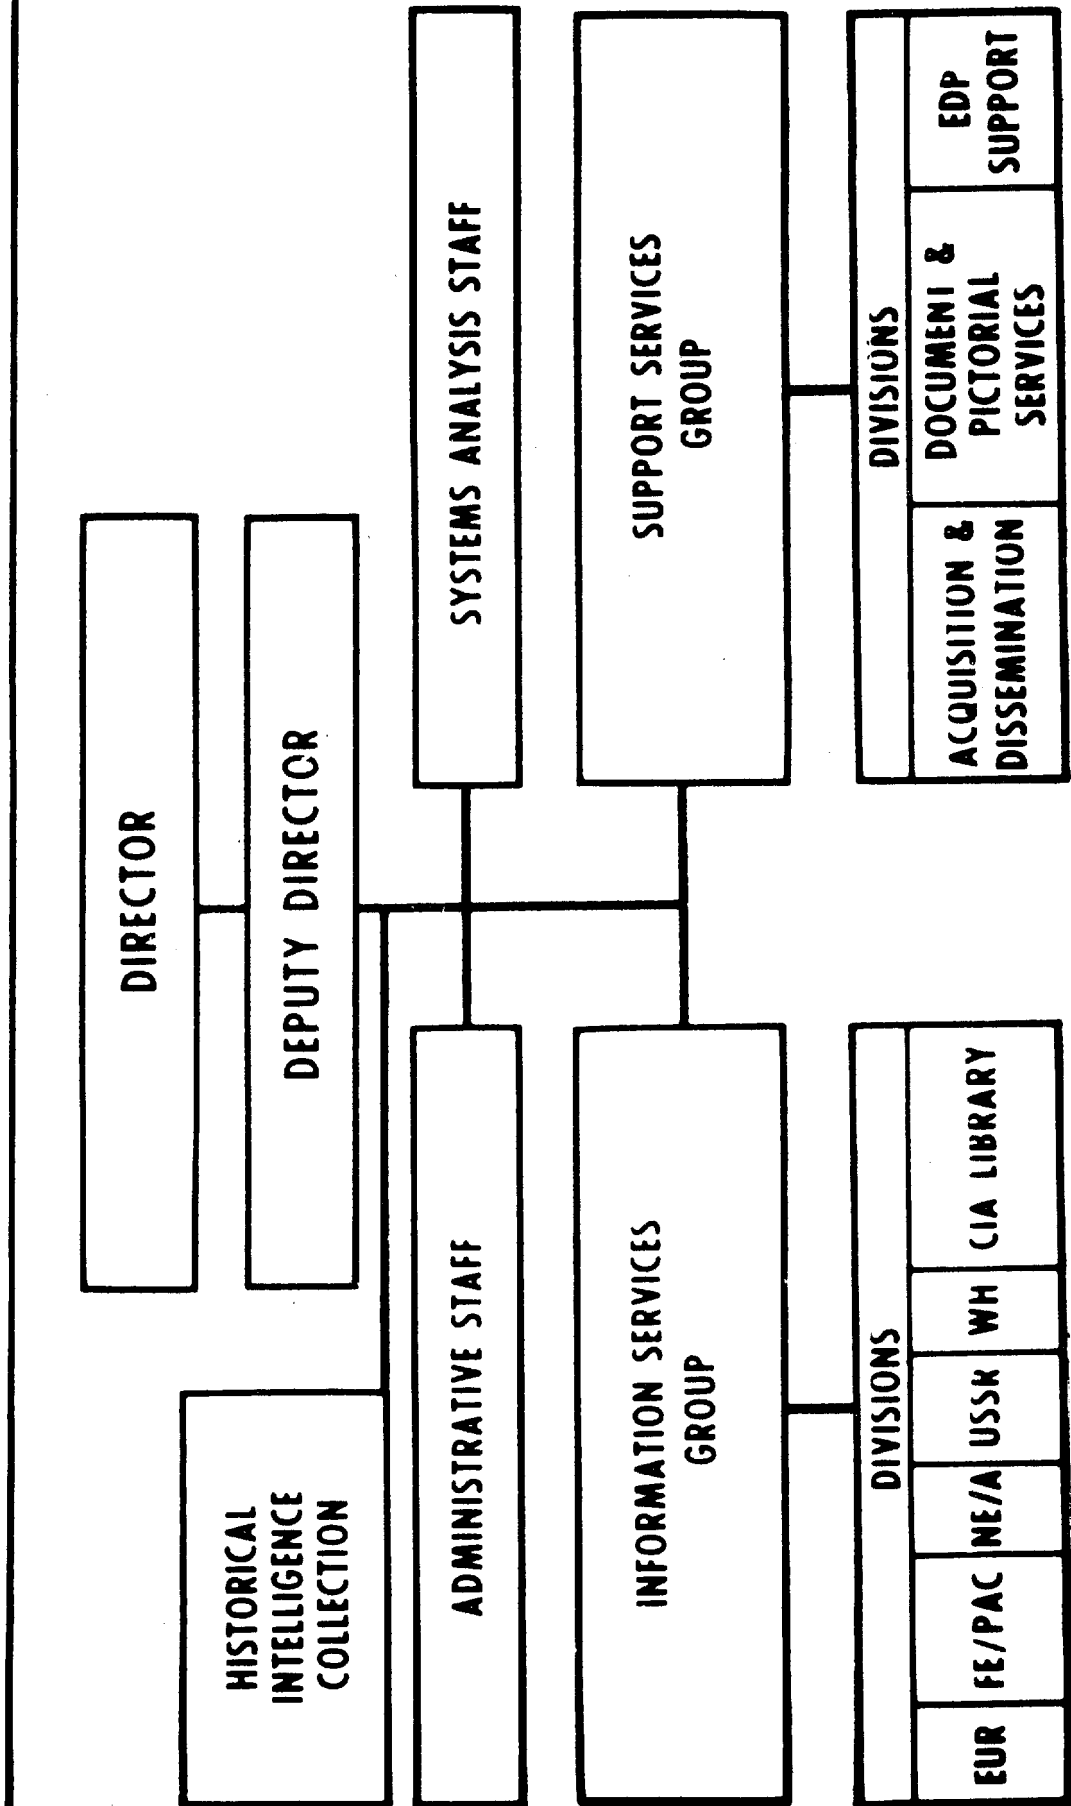

Organization

CRS is organized in two major groups, the Information Services Group (ISG) and the Support Services Group (SSG). The Office of the Director, CRS, also includes the Historical Intelligence Collection (HIC), a Systems Analysis Staff, and an Administrative Staff. The two Staffs are concerned with the internal operations of CRS; the specific functions and services of the various elements of the two major Groups (ISG and SSG) and the resources of HIC are detailed below.

INFORMATION SERVICES GROUP (ISG)

Organization

The Information Services Group (ISG) is composed of five geographic divisions and the CIA Library, which provide the services listed below in support of the Agency's intelligence production, research, estimative, operational and collection components.

Services - General

- ° INFORMATION STORAGE AND RETRIEVAL SERVICE on personalities, installations, organizations, subjects, commodities, and areas from documents, books, periodicals, and ground and personality photography.
- ° PREPARATION OF FINISHED BIOGRAPHIC REPORTS, COMPILATIONS, AND REFERENCE AIDS on foreign personalities for the Agency and official U.S. activities.
- ° GUIDANCE FOR WORLD-WIDE COLLECTION OF BIOGRAPHIC INFORMATION.
- ° A LIBRARY OF OPEN SOURCE BOOKS, PERIODICALS, AND NEWSPAPERS, both domestic and foreign.
- ° DIRECTIONAL GUIDANCE SERVICE to other sources of information within the Agency, Intelligence Community, and the U.S. Government.

Key Service Points are listed on Page 2 of the Agency Telephone Directory. CRS also publishes a directory of key personnel and of analysts by country, which can be obtained by calling Extension 7518.

~~SECRET~~

BIOGRAPHIC INFORMATION

Resources/Services

- ° All-source information on foreign personalities other than military, provided in accordance with DCID 1/9, which assigns primary responsibility for biographic intelligence within the Intelligence Community to CIA.
- ° A 22-year accumulation of biographic records derived from collateral and special intelligence reports, the foreign and domestic press, books, journals, radio broadcasts, the scientific literature, foreign student files, and other sources, including the following:
 - A 3-million item file on the books and articles of Soviet Bloc scientists, including their institutional affiliations.

25X1B0a

25X1B0a

- ° Continuing maintenance of lists of potential foreign leaders as reported by overseas posts and the monitoring of reporting on such individuals.
- ° Development, in cooperation with requesters, of special purpose manual or machine files such as:
 - A computer-held data bank of biographic intelligence on members of the Soviet elite.

SECRET

- Systematic reporting on the appearances of Soviet and Chicom officials.
- ° Publication of formal biographic reports, including:
 - Comprehensive biographies in the form of an "Intelligence Memorandum" or "Intelligence Report" on individuals or groups of current significance (CR-M and CR-R series).
 - Biographic "Intelligence Handbooks," issued in loose-leaf form and augmented quarterly, on the most influential personalities in every foreign country (CR-BH series).
 - Governmental directories, organizational and other biographic "Reference Aids" (CR-A series).

Key Service Points are listed on Page 2 of the Agency Telephone Directory. CRS also publishes a directory of key personnel and of analysts by country, which can be obtained by calling Extension 7518.

INFORMATION ON FOREIGN SUBJECTS, AREAS, AND ORGANIZATIONS

Resources/Services

- ° ISG divisions locate information for requesters on foreign subjects, areas, and organizations (for the period dating from 1947), including:
 - All raw intelligence information reports produced by CIA, NSA, State, DIA.
 - 25X1X4 - All finished intelligence studies prepared by [REDACTED]
 - Selected intelligence cables and telegrams.
 - Ground photography.
- ° Searches in the files may specify a subject or a group of subjects, an area or several areas, a date or date span, the security classification, the originating component, and the type of information--field reporting, evaluated intelligence, or ground photography. Normally, the initial response to an inquiry is a list of documents or photographs believed to be pertinent to the objective of the search. The listings can be screened either by the requester himself or by the ISG analyst to remove any citations which are obviously not applicable to the problem at hand. Once the listings have been screened, they are forwarded to the central document or photographic files where copies of the documents or photos desired are made available to the requester.
- ° Organizations and facilities can be located by name, location, or specialty, e.g., type of product, type of research, type of activity--or by their relationship to other organizations and facilities. File coverage includes intelligence documents, photographs, sketches, maps, leading personalities, activities, and description of each organization and facility.

CIA LIBRARY

Resources/Services

- The CIA Library, a division of ISG, provides reference and loan services from open literature.
- The book collection of the CIA Library reflects the broad scope of Agency interests, with particular emphasis on foreign political, economic, social, and scientific activities. It is cataloged according to the Library of Congress system. The reference collection is maintained in the Reading Room.
- The book collection is supplemented through interlibrary loan channels to the Library of Congress and to other government, public, and private libraries.
- The extensive periodical and newspaper collection of foreign and domestic titles is strong in Russian and Chinese materials.
- The Library collection includes diplomatic and consular lists, texts of speeches made by leading foreign officials, informal bibliographies, texts of international treaties and agreements, and foreign and domestic telephone directories.

Branch Libraries

The Library operates a branch in the Ames Building for the Office of Communications; and gives guidance to the libraries in the Office of General Counsel at Headquarters, Office of Research and Development in the Ames Building, and the Office of Training at 1000 Glebe Road.

SUPPORT SERVICES GROUP (SSG)

Organization

The Support Services Group (SSG) consists of the Acquisition and Dissemination Division (ADD), the Document and Pictorial Services Division (DPSD), and the Electronic Data Processing Support Division (EDPSD).

Functions

- DISSEMINATION of all-source intelligence materials and open source publications (books, newspapers, and periodicals).
- COLLECTION AND DISSEMINATION of ground photography, motion picture films, and videotapes.
- PROCUREMENT OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC PUBLICATIONS for all components of CIA.
- OPERATION OF COMPUTER CENTER AND ASSOCIATED DATA PROCESSING FACILITIES.

Key Service Points are listed on Page 2 of the Agency Telephone Directory. CRS also publishes a directory of key personnel and of analysts by country, which can be obtained by calling Extension 7518.

PROCUREMENT OF PUBLICATIONS AND GRAPHICS

Publications

- The Acquisition Branch, ADD, provides Agency offices with foreign and domestic overt publications (books, newspapers, and periodicals) through the Publications Procurement Program of the Foreign Service and by direct purchases from publishers and book dealers. Publications are procured according to standing requirements of user offices or on the basis of specific orders.

For information regarding publishers, costs and availability of publications, call or visit the Acquisition Branch, Room GH0922 (Extension 5310). Requests for purchase must be submitted on Form 1395.

Graphics

- The Pictorial Services Branch, DPSD, maintains continuing and close contact with commercial photo and motion picture sources and the television industry, [REDACTED] and other government agencies to provide for the regular procurement of materials for current and strategic intelligence requirements. The Branch directs the joint Department of State/CIA Graphics Coordinator Program for the procurement of intelligence photography.

FOIAb3b1

Requirements may be placed for the procurement of ground and personality photography or motion picture film and videotape by contacting the Pictorial Services Branch, Room 1E4822 (Extension 7407).

DOCUMENT DISSEMINATION AND STORAGE/DELIVERY SERVICES

Dissemination

- The Dissemination Branch, ADD, provides CIA analysts with copies of intelligence reports, messages, and publications produced by CIA, State, Defense, non-USIB agencies and certain foreign governments. Over-all requirements are validated annually but additions, deletions, and organizational changes may be submitted at any time.

Information on all phases of dissemination, control of Top Secret documents, and on procedural guidance involving classification is available through the Dissemination Branch, Room GH0922 (Extension 7648). Requirements for dissemination should be submitted through the requester's component.

Microfilm and Hard Copy Files

- The Document Services Branch, DPSD, administers a collection of intelligence documents received from all sources (dating from 1947) and maintained in two separate but contiguous areas for the collateral and codeword categories. The basic collateral file is stored on 16 and 35mm microfilm in aperture card format and the basic codeword collection is stored in hard copy with selected series stored on aperture cards. The Inter-Agency Services Section, DSB, will obtain for requesters copies of documents produced elsewhere and not available in the basic collection.

For collateral documents contact Search Section, Document Services Branch, Room 1H1125 (Extension 7177); for codeword documents contact Special Unit, Document Services Branch, Room 1H1107 (Extension 5811).

PICTORIAL SERVICES

Photography

- The Photograph Section, Pictorial Services Branch, DPSD, conducts an overseas and domestic photo collection program and maintains the negative file for all Agency-accessioned ground and personality photography. The section provides each week an opportunity for analysts to view all newly accessioned photographs.

Selection of photographs should be made in consultation with ISG analysts (see CRS Directory) and should be requested by number in the Photograph Section, Room 1E4808 (Extension 7868).

Motion Picture Film and Videotapes

- The Film Section, Pictorial Services Branch, DPSD, conducts an overseas and domestic motion picture film and videotape collection program and operates a library and loan service from its extensive holdings. The collection is especially strong on Southeast Asia and on SovBloc scientific, technical, geographic, and documentary films. The Film Section also maintains motion pictures for domestic orientation and training purposes as well as for overseas use. Theatre facilities are available. The section also provides a film editing service, including the preparation of sound tracks.

For motion pictures, videotapes, or other services, contact the Film Section, Room 1E4822 (Extension 7407).

EDP SUPPORT SERVICES

Systems and Programming Support

- Systems analysts and programmers are available in the EDP Support Division to assist DDI components in developing computer applications.

Equipment Support

- Equipment currently available includes a 360/50 computer, punched card equipment, remote access devices and a Rapid Search Machine. Page Reader applications can also be arranged.

Requests for systems, programming, and machine support should be addressed to EDPSD, Room 1E4810 (Extension 5387).

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE COLLECTION (HIC)

The Agency's Historical Intelligence Collection (HIC) located in Room 1H1124 (Ext. 5630) is closely related to, although not a component of, the CIA Library. It is a collection in depth of open literature on the subject of intelligence and intelligence tradecraft in all countries and in all languages. Also included are books referring to CIA, favorably or unfavorably. HIC also maintains extensive clipping files of historical interest on CIA and major espionage cases. HIC is headed by its own Curator and provides both reference service and lending facilities for its material.

Key Service Points are listed on Page 2 of the Agency Telephone Directory. CRS also publishes a directory of key personnel and of analysts by country, which can be obtained by calling Extension 7518.
