Dear Mr. Hosking:

I'm sorry for the delay in responding to your inquiry of May 23, 1975; however, the enclosed letter, which was mailed on the 30th of June, was returned to our office yesterday by the U.S. Postal Service with the following note: "Moved, Not Forwardable."

After checking with your main business office in McLean, I understand the Washington, D.C., address is no longer current and are, therefore, forwarding the attached to your new location in McLean.
