The 1984 Open Season video was played continuously from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. each day and our representative has answered approximately 250 questions. h. The Office of Security has devoted two officers in a near full-time capacity to field requirements and record reviews relative to the arrest of Karel Koecher on espionage charges. Numerous meetings with other Agency components, the Department of Justice, as well as the FBI, have taken place to achieve the right balance for ensuring prosecutable merit while protecting national security equities. On 14 December, the Director of Security and Chief, Security Analysis Group/OS will brief the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence on this case.

i. The Office of Security (OS) participated in a coordinated, short deadline Agency response to questions posed by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence. They will be referred to the Department of Justice.

1. The Office of Information Services was asked to consult with the Department of State over the possibility that Ambassador Andrew Steigman was preparing to have a manuscript published about which he knew the CIA had serious reservations. Ambassador Steigman, presently writing for the Center for Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown University, has signed secrecy agreements. In discussing the manuscript with the Office of Public Affairs, Ambassador Steigman insisted that his action was based on policy disagreements. The Department has promised to coordinate the review of the manuscript with the Agency once it is received.

m. DDA Career Days, sponsored by the Directorate of Administration (DA), was held in the LJ Corridor of the Headquarters building on 11, 12, and 13 December. The program was designed to provide a realistic look at careers as they exist in the DA today. Exhibits were displayed by all components where representatives were on hand to answer questions and provide information on careers in the DA. Initial feedback indicates that the program was very well received.

3. Significant activities anticipated during the coming week:

On Wednesday afternoon, 19 December, the DDA, along with the other Deputy Directors, will join the graduating class of the Field Tradecraft Course for dinner [REDACTED]

DCI WEEKLY REPORT
PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICE

John McMahon's presentation to the National War College was a big success, according to course director Colonel Siner.

John Lelyveld (NEW YORK TIMES Magazine), who is doing an article on the DCI and the Intelligence Community's relationship with USG policymaking, had interviews with John McMahon and Bob Gates. Lelyveld is a serious journalist but knows very little about the Agency and the intelligence business.

Bob Woodward met with [redacted] re Woodward's projected upcoming trip to Moscow to meet with KGB officials. The date of the trip is as yet undetermined, probably after the Gromyko/Shultz meeting.

I had a long conversation with Chris Dickey, WASHINGTON POST, who is on sabbatical and who has done a very unhelpful article on the contra program. It was scheduled to have already appeared in the WASHINGTON POST, but since my off-the-record discussion with Dickey, publication was postponed, hopefully for some rewriting and further checking. However, since Dickey's material appears to have been obtained from some of the LA task force dissenters, it, at best, is likely to be troublesome.

I turned down 60 Minutes' request for Agency direct or indirect participation in a program it is doing on Arkady Shevchenko. On our advice, Stan Turner, who had been asked to appear, will not do so. [redacted] briefed Senator Moynihan who will be on the show. Moynihan says he wants to focus on Soviet intelligence activity at the United Nations.

Phil Taubman of the NEW YORK TIMES is commencing to slowly fade out of his current assignment and is starting preparations to be the TIMES's Moscow Bureau chief. Joel Brinkley will take his place covering U. S. national security matters. Inter alia, Taubman said he believes that support for the contra program is slowly growing in the Congress (House).

Dave Martin, CBS, says that our complaint to the FCC re ABC has the media scared out of their wits.

[redacted] has now participated in three taped television programs regarding our complaint to the FCC. In hindsight, while a certain amount of media exposure has probably been helpful in directing attention to our cause, the tapings have not been helpful in really getting our views publicized. All three stations used our case only as a jumping-off point to discuss the real issue of libel and the stations edited out [redacted] persuasive arguments regarding the principles of the case. On balance further participation in taped shows probably would not be useful. However, we have received a request to appear live on McNeil-Lehrer with an ABC representative.
