Mr. Robert I. Smith
Glenmeade Trust Company
229 South 18th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Dear Mr. Smith:

During a recent visit to the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, I learned about the innovative and well-conceived oral history program dealing with decisionmaking in the USSR which is being conducted under the aegis of Professor Uri Ra'anan, Director of the International Security Studies Program.

I understand that this program was made possible by a grant from the J. Howard Pew Trust to the Fletcher School. I wanted to let you know what a worthwhile and useful endeavor I think this is.

Sincerely,

William J. Casey

Dear Mr. Casey:

We are very pleased to send you (enclosed) our post-conference summation, covering the proceedings of our meeting on "Terrorism and Other 'Low-Intensity' Operations: International Linkages." A post-conference book, in paperback as well as hard cover, will be published in November 1985, by D.C. Heath, under the title of Hydra of Carnage. It will consist of two segments, the first embodying chapters based on the contributions to the conference, and the second (under the title of "The Witnesses Speak") presenting original documentation on the topic, including minutes of a meeting in Teheran establishing terrorist units, and of meetings between Gromyko and Ponomarev, on the one hand, and Arafat and Kaddoumi. Also included are excerpts from interviews with former Soviet and Nicaraguan intelligence officers dealing with planning and coordination for "low-intensity" operations, as well as the linkage with the new "Nark-Intern" (Narcotics-International). The interviews are excerpted from the Fletcher School's International Security Studies Program's Oral History Project. You may be interested to know that three of the contributions to our conference have been publicized already in the New York Times and the Washington Post (Feith), the Wall Street Journal (Wallop), and the Washington Times (Casey). The work bids fair to be a major and dramatic contribution to the field.

Sincerely yours,

Uri Raanan

Dear Mr. Casey:

In the letter we sent to you on June 14, asking for your signature on the consent form, I should have explained the following inconsequential alterations, meant merely to turn your presentation from address to chapter form:

First paragraph deleted.

Second paragraph reworded as follows:

"The work of the Fletcher School's International Security Studies Program has indeed provided an appropriate forum for us to grapple with the grim and sobering reality of world terrorism. International terrorism has become a perpetual war without borders. To the extent that I can, I shall explain how the American Intelligence Community assesses this dreadful scourge and how I think we should deal with it."

Apart from this, the only changes are, of course, to delete the pronunciation of words given in square brackets, substitution of the words "the Soviet leaders" or "the Soviet Union," or "the USSR," for the words "the Soviets," with appropriate changes in the verbs in question (from singular to plural and vice versa). On page 7, the paragraph will start with: "Now, to turn" instead of "Let me now turn." Finally, the last sentence in the paper will say "A work such as this..." instead of "A conference such as this."

With great appreciation and thanks.

Cordially yours,

Uri Ra'anan

Dear Mr. Casey:

The whole of our community, as well as the other participants in the Conference, are immensely grateful for your kindness and graciousness in allocating so much of your valuable time and energy to our gathering. Your keynote address was the essential element in sending the Conference along the right path, and the very fact that it came from a personality of your caliber and standing made all the difference. The text will, of course, provide the opening chapter for our book, Hydra of Carnage and, again, will make a major difference to the success of this work in reaching the widest possible public. It was a great honor for me and my colleagues to be able to spend an evening with you and I want you to know how much we all appreciate your contribution, as well as the cooperation of your staff.

Dear Ms. Noble-Neal:

Thank you for sending the books published from previous Fletcher School Conferences as well as a tentative agenda. Enclosed as you requested is a black and white photograph of Mr. Casey and a copy of his biography. I will keep you informed as to whether Mrs. Casey will accompany Mr. Casey.

As we discussed, we do not mind having the print media present, but we do request that you not allow television or radio coverage. Although Mr. Casey does not grant press interviews, we have no objection if a student photographer takes still portraits of Mr. Casey. We also request that Mr. Casey's speech be taped by the school for our historical files. We understand that a student from the college will tape all speeches for the purpose of publishing them in your post-conference volume. As we agreed, the Agency will review the transcript of Mr. Casey's speech before it is published.

We would appreciate any additional background information on the college such as brochures or pamphlets that would be available. Biographies of Professor Ra'anan, Dean Elliott, and Mr. Dick Schultz would be appreciated as well as a copy of the completed agenda. Could you let us know the general make-up of the audience, including their background and affiliations, and who from the press you expect to be present? You mentioned that several would be there in a private capacity.

Closer to the time of the address, I would appreciate knowing who will be with Mr. Casey on the dais. Will a neck mike as well as a podium mike be available? A sketch of the banquet room and table arrangement at the Royal Sonesta Hotel would also be helpful.

I look forward to hearing from you in preparation for this event.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

FROM: George V. Lauder
Director, Public Affairs Office

SUBJECT: Invitation to Speak at the 14th Annual Conference of the
Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy's International
Security Studies Program

1. Action Requested: Accept or decline an invitation to be a featured speaker at Tufts University's Fletcher School's International Security Studies Program's Annual Conference sometime from 17 to 19 April 1985 in Medford, Massachusetts.

2. Background: During the dinner meeting of the "Pumpkin Papers Irregulars," Professor of International Politics and Director of the International Security Studies Program Uri Ra'anani invited you to be a featured speaker at the Fletcher School's conference this coming spring. Professor Ra'anani has followed up his verbal invitation with a formal letter. (See written invitation opposite).

Approximately 150 will attend the early part of the Conference, decreasing to about 100 by the second and third days. The audience would be government officials, U.S. military personnel, members of Congress, corporate executives, and academicians. The audience will be participants in the discussions which will follow all formal presentations.

The Conference will be devoted to "Terrorism" and "Low-Intensity Operations" which we interpret as surrogate warfare and state-supported terrorism. (See attached agenda). Tentatively, there will be nine sessions, all of them plenary. Three will be meal sessions: a keynote dinner on 17 April and luncheon sessions on 18 and 19 April.

The Conference planners hope to have three major speakers for these meal sessions -- you, Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, and Senator Wallop of Wyoming. Other principals, yet to be determined, will present papers at the plenary sessions. You have been invited to be the keynote speaker; however, you may pick one of the two luncheon sessions if they would be more convenient. If you cannot attend, Professor Ra'anani has indicated he would welcome the DDCI.

SUBJECT: Invitation to Speak at the 14th Annual Conference of the
Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy's International
Security Studies Program

Following the Conference, a bound volume of the speeches and papers will be published. Your remarks would be included, although you would have an opportunity to review and approve. The published records of the Conference usually make policy recommendations. Per oral understanding between Professor Ra'anan and our Academic Coordinator, these policy recommendations would not be linked to you.

Recommendation: The Fletcher School is a prestigious and fruitful source for recruits. President Jean Mayer of Tufts University recently rescinded his Dean's ban on Agency recruiting at the University which had followed in the wake of student demonstrations.

If the general topic of the Conference which Fletcher wishes you to address--"Other and 'Low-Intensity' Operations: International Linkages"--does not present a problem for you, I recommend we accept the invitation for next April. If we accept, I assume you will want to do the keynote address. If some problem arises between now and then, such as serious demonstrations at Tufts against the Agency, we may wish to reconsider. We will so advise Tufts.

Dear Mr. Casey:

It was a great pleasure to meet with you on Wednesday, October 31, at the dinner of the "Pumpkin Papers Irregulars" (actually, for the second time, since we met in 1980--I believe in the same place--when you came to bid farewell officially to President Reagan's Foreign Affairs and Defense Advisory Team).

I should like to repeat herewith officially the verbal invitation I extended to you to do us the honor of being a featured speaker at our 14th Annual Conference (of The Fletcher School's International Security Studies Program), which will be devoted to Terrorism and Other "Low Intensity" Operations: International Linkages (draft agenda attached).

The Conference will be held April 17-19, 1985, and we could have you featured at the time most convenient to you (the draft agenda is very preliminary, and we could shift around the ceremonial meals with their featured speakers to suit your preference--e.g., the luncheons of April 18 or 19, if this would make things easier for you). Our main speakers in the past have included such personalities as General Alexander Haig, Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, and General Russell E. Dougherty. In the forthcoming conference, we are also hoping to have the participation of Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, in addition to yourself.

The Conference like its predecessors, will be at the "cutting edge" of current international security affairs; so far all of our conferences have led to at least one hard cover post-conference volume, preceded in recent years by a soft cover conference summation report.

Previous conference topics have covered such areas as:

"Security Commitments and Capabilities: Elements of an American Global Strategy"

"National Security Policy: The Decision-Making Process"

"International Security Dimensions of Space"

"Resources and International Conflict"

"Surprise, Deception and the Role of Intelligence in Policy

"New Technologies in the Non-nuclear Conflict Arena"

The conference participants have been drawn from the executive and legislative branches of government, the armed forces, the appropriate representatives of the private sector, the "think tanks," and the qualified members of the academic vocation. In that sense, they are all truly "participants," rather than mere "audience." Your presentation will be incorporated in our post-conference volume, leaving you, however, in full control of any revisions or alternations you might deem appropriate. We cover all travel expenses of our speakers, as well as, usually, an honorarium of $1,200 (for those whose position permits them to accept honoraria).

I have no doubt that the topic of our conference is close to your heart, as it is to ours, and that you agree that the time is ripe to tackle this issue.

I was very encouraged to have a preliminary positive response to my verbal invitation and hope that you will find it possible to accept this official proposal.

Very cordially yours,
