

ORGI INTERNATIONAL

Bulletin

Want to know what Carter is really up to in foreign policy?
 ... and what's happening in the rest of the world?
 Read the International
Bulletin.

We cover the world: Asia, Africa, Latin America, the Middle East, and Europe. We follow everything from South Korean bribes to the battle for southern Africa, from OPEC to nuclear arms.

We'll be watching and analyzing the foreign and defense policies of the Carter administration—and informing our readers about what's behind policy decisions. We want you to know what the U.S. is doing in the world—and why.

We think you would be hard-pressed to find a better, more reliable and concise source of news and analysis of U.S. foreign policy and world events . . . (see inside)

... We pack all this into a readable eight pages. And the Bulletin has no advertising—it is a completely independent publication run by the staff. We produce the Bulletin every two weeks—but we're watching and analyzing world events every day for our Internews radio reports which reach over half a million listeners across the country.

Our readers tell us they can't trust Time and Newsweek, but they have come to trust the Bulletin. When Angola threatened to become the next Vietnam, when tensions along the DMZ in Korea exploded, when the military seized power in Thailand—our readers knew they could rely on the Bulletin for a full, factual account of the events and for a tough-minded analysis of U.S. policy. Bulletin readers also count on us to spot trends before they make headlines, to turn up important news that is buried or suppressed by other media. Our readers know we'll investigate Pentagon claims of a Soviet civil defense buildup, quiet rumblings of U.S. arms sales to China, and hidden wars in Timor and the Spanish Sahara.

The International Bulletin can help keep you on top of the world—for just $8 a year (24 issues). Fill out the coupon on the left and mail it today. We'll be glad to bill you. Or, for an even better deal, include your $8 now, and we'll send you an extra issue free.

“Even after all the U.S.
has been responsible for internationally, most of us are still ignorant of foreign affairs.
That’s why the International Bulletin is so singularly valuable.”

Nat Hentoff
Village Voice

The International Bulletin covers the world...

- Lebanon and the "Arab civil war." What does it mean for the Middle East? The Bulletin covered this crisis long before it hit the headlines. We're still at it—reporting the facts, analyzing the politics, and keeping you way ahead of your morning paper.
- The Soviet Union, China, and the U.S.—the great power triangle. The Bulletin analyzes developments in the sensitive and dangerous triangular relationship—from Sino-Soviet border talks to U.S. military ties with China and SALT agreements between Moscow and Washington.
- The World's resources—who will control them? Oil, gold, uranium, coffee, tin, copper, the wealth of the oceans. The Bulletin follows the world economy, the "North-South" dialogue, and the battle between rich and poor nations that will shape the rest of this century.

... and will be watching the Carter administration.

- Human rights and U.S. policy—will President Carter stick to his campaign promises? Will the new administration cut aid to South Korea, Chile, the Philippines? The Bulletin will be a watchdog on the administration and follow the looming fight in Congress over military and economic aid to dictatorships.
- What will Carter do in southern Africa? Will he dump the floundering Kissinger strategy? Will he challenge South Africa's apartheid regime? The Bulletin will keep tabs on Washington's moves, and we'll also provide in-depth coverage of Angola, Mozambique and the black rebellion in South Africa.
- Nuclear weapons—Carter has said he favors an end to the arms race. But will he resist Pentagon pressures for more exotic weapons that may make arms reduction impossible? The Bulletin will bring you the full story—from East-West arms talks to the battle over the Pentagon budget.

What some of our readers say about the Bulletin...

"Factual. Interesting. I learn something every time I pick it up."

—Rep. Ron Dellums
(D-Calif.)

"Fills an important gap in international news coverage and analysis. I find it extremely useful."

—James Ridgeway
Village Voice

"Factually sound, readable and concise. Very useful in replacing what passes for news of the international scene in the establishment press."

—Malvina Reynolds, songwriter

"Accurate, extremely useful. The International Bulletin comes the closest to filling the gap left by the demise of the old I. F. Stone weekly."

—Robert Scheer
New Times

"Fine reporting, clear writing and excellent analysis. I think it's the best newsletter available on international affairs and I highly recommend it."

—Elizabeth Farnsworth
World Press (PBS), NACLA

"Whatever its virtues, the American press operates within severe ideological constraints that impair coverage and analysis of international affairs. Internews provides a unique way of compensating for these limitations. I have found the International Bulletin highly informative and very enlightening."

—Noam Chomsky

"A promising attempt to reach thousands of Americans with information and insights they would be unlikely to discover elsewhere."

—Dave Dellinger
Seven Days

"I heartily recommend the International Bulletin to those who wish to keep up with the news on a global scale. It is a valuable, concise, eminently readable journal."

—Rep. Michael Harrington
(D-Mass.)

"The most concise and logical presentation of important events I've ever seen. A highly objective series of reports. It is remarkable that you can get all that essential material in eight pages."

—Earl C. Ravenal
former Pentagon analyst

"I continue to find the Bulletin a source of useful information on major world issues. I hope you will continue to provide the kind of journalism that is hard to find in most of the established media."

—Sen. James Abourezk
