Filming in D.C.

What should be a fascinating movie is soon to be filmed against the background of our home town.

Richard Widmark and the cast for "Vanished," Fletcher Knebel's novel about the President's closest friend and key adviser who disappears from the fifth hole of Burning Tree golf course, will arrive here on the 13th.

They will move into the new Key Bridge Marriott Motel's 200-room tower and remain here for a week.

They will portray action against such Washington backdrops as the outside of the White House, Dulles Airport, the old Senate Office Building, the Capitol steps, and hopefully Air Force One as well as the President's helicopter.

And, oh yes, the 5th hole on the B.T. course will be another scene in the Universal City film.
