CARTER IS OFFERED A TRIUMVIRATE FOR PROGRESS

Little in the way of official statements has emerged from the four-power Guadeloupe summit, but the outcome of the Caribbean talks has marked the emergence of a 20-year-old French dream, and 20-year-long British nightmare. Our INTERNATIONAL Report brings you: the steps taken at Guadeloupe by President Giscard and Chancellor Schmidt to break the Anglo-American "special relationship" and replace it with what amounts to a Franco-German-American "triumvirate" dedicated to progress and peace; moves by the two leaders to break the IMF stranglehold on the Third World; and growing positive recognition of the European Monetary System by the Soviet Union. Plus: signs that Britain is becoming dangerously unhinged in the wake of the humiliation of Prime Minister Callaghan at the Guadeloupe meeting.

THE MILITARY COUP THREAT IN IRAN

Who is opposing Prime Minister Shapur Bakhtiar's efforts to end the turmoil in Iran — and why? Our THIRD WORLD Report by analyst Judith Wyer takes a close look at the forces at work both within and outside of the Iranian government which prefer continued unrest of a bloody right-wing regime to Bakhtiar's success. And she discusses the links between Iran's right-wing generals and U.S. National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski. Plus: a report by respected Asia editor Daniel Sneider on the latest proceedings in the court case which threatens the life of former Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. page 42

The U.S. Postal Service is in worse shape than the gloomiest pessimists have suspected, relates investigative reporter Steve Parsons in our U.S. REPORT. His stranger-than-fiction tale of intrigue and espionage recounts how the experience of one organization, the U.S. Labor Party, with opened and stolen mail, led to the uncovering of a ring of National Security Agency and British intelligence dirty tricks operatives embedded at the highest levels of the institution established by Benjamin Franklin to help America secure its independence from Great Britain. Milton Friedman and the Kennedy family machine loom large in this report, which has disturbing implications for political parties other than Ted Kennedy's which base their fund-raising on direct mail efforts. page 35

How Brzezinski is linked to the Jones cult

Why is the National Security Council putting the kibosh on aspects of the investigation of the Jim Jones cult murders in Guyana? Our specially expanded COUNTERINTELLIGENCE Section — featuring reports by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr., and Counterintelligence editor Jeffrey Steinberg, two of the nation's foremost intelligence specialists — will give you answers you never suspected. In LaRouche's report: the twofold division of London's Tavistock Institute, and its influence over the "academic" disciplines of sociology, anthropology, psychology and political science; the homosexual-tinged "Mysteries of the Golden Dawn" cult of British aristocrats; Aldous Huxley, H.G. Wells, Bertrand Russell, and Margaret Mead. All leading to the British "New Dark Age" policy perspective, and its influence on NSC chief Brzezinski and cult leader Jones. And Steinberg brings you explicit new evidence of British intelligence control over the entire postwar "radical left," based in part on the firsthand admissions of British intelligence stringer Michel Vale. page 8

Successful "cracking" of the cover of a major chunk of British secret intelligence operations against the United States has enabled the U.S. Labor Party to prove and define precisely the connections between National Security Council advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski and the Jones Peoples' Temple cult. Although that connection is of tertiary importance in itself, examining the connections will aid many officials and others in comprehending the way the Bertrand Russell faction of British intelligence is organized and deployed.

We have four chunks of British intelligence to consider overall, apart from the formal governmental military and intelligence bureaucracy of the British monarchy itself. One element is Chatham House (the Royal Institute for International Affairs), the chief foreign policy subsidiary arm of the British Round Table organization. The second element is the Zionist branch of the British intelligence organization, including the Israeli Mossad and the Perminex assassination organization, both linked to Investors Overseas Services and to the Resorts International parent company of Intertel. The third element is a nest of organizations associated with the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation.

The fourth element is the psychological-warfare branch of the British secret intelligence service, the London Tavistock Institute (Sussex).

The latter element is our principal topic here, the sub-element of British intelligence service to which both Zbigniew Brzezinski and the late Reverend Jones were subsidiary — each at their own level and in their own way. The other elements attract our attention here only as they intersect the Tavistock branch in codeployments.

We refer the reader now to the accompanying chart. This chart is a much-simplified outline of the organization of Tavistock, identifying the essential elements of relevance for our attention here. We have listed a few sample subsidiary elements, also as those are relevant to this account.

We have, quite correctly, defined the most important of the foreign-intelligence operations at Tavistock as organized into two principal divisions, the first termed the "Sociology Division," and the second, the "Political Division." As we shall demonstrate, the creation of the Peoples' Temple cult was accomplished by the first of these two divisions. It is to that side of the line of organization that the late Jim Jones belonged. Mr. Brzezinski, as we shall see, belongs to the second of the two indicated operations divisions.

Let us first locate Mr. Brzezinski's British intelligence pedigree with aid of this chart and the accompanying illustrative tables.

As is generally known, Zbigniew Brzezinski's father, Tadeusz Brzezinski, was a secondary Polish government official whose family was located on the underside of the old Polish aristocracy. The father became a British operative and Canadian resident. The son, Zbigniew, was processed first through a Bronfman program at Montreal's McGill University, and was promoted — as was the present Canadian Prime Minister, Elliot Trudeau — to advanced studies at the Chatham House division of British foreign intelligence at Harvard University, under the guidance of Professor William Yandell Elliott, an American-born British spy.

Brzezinski was in the same British-intelligence training group at Harvard with Henry Kissinger and Daniel Ellsberg, until Brzezinski lost his own special position, in order to make way for Elliott's promoting of Kissinger to that position within the British intelligence service's Wilton Park operation. Brzezinski moved to another British intelligence nest, the Russian studies program at New York City's Columbia University, which remained his base of operations until he took up his appointment as National Security Council advisor and as chief controller of President Jimmy Carter for British intelligence.

IN THIS SECTION

Our expanded COUNTERINTELLIGENCE section this week features major reports by two of America's leading intelligence specialists — U.S. Labor Party Chairman Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. and our Counterintelligence editor, Jeffrey Steinberg — on the scope and policy of British intelligence operations in the United States, Eastern Europe, and elsewhere. LaRouche's "How Brzezinski is Linked to the Jones Cult" presents new findings on the twofold division of British covert intelligence operations and details the origins and nature of the "New Dark Ages" policy perspective which guides British deployments. In "How Britain runs the 'radical left,'" Steinberg reviews the evidence of control by Britain's Tavistock Institute of what amounts to the entire "radical left" movement in the postwar Western world, based in part on evidence obtained in debriefings of a second-level Tavistock stringer, Michel Vale.
