

Jack Anderson's WASHINGTON LETTER

for people who question what they hear from Washington & Wall Street

March 1987

Volume IV, No. 5

February 18--Inside source confided that CIA is frantically reviewing its secret operations to determine whether any U.S. laws have been violated. Under former director William Casey,^A CIA engaged in covert activities that may have gone beyond law.

^A Former CIA counsel Stanley Sporkin created paperwork that provides legal basis for dubious projects. But he utilized more loopholes than laws, source said. Casey also dealt ^P directly with Lt. Col. Oliver North, without confiding in subordinates. Fear is that Casey may have implicated CIA in North's wild schemes unbeknownst to his successors. CIA has learned that North was running half-a-dozen covert operations.
