interior of the vessel. An object is lifted straight up and out of the vessel's interior; then it stops and changes angle once it is above the smallest opening (see enclosure 1c).

-- This structure is associated with directed energetics of some sort. Large, circular fields or rings of energy are projected out at an extremely fast rate from the smallest opening. They are reminiscent of "visible light" rings of donut-shaped white energy. Enclosures 1e-1g, depict an angle apparatus which telescopes up out of the interior of the vessel and then spreads out.

-- The diagram at (enclosure 1g) depicts what is formed by the structure on the vessel. It is perceived to be some sort of energy "ring" that is formed around the vessel. The radius is in the tens or hundreds of miles range (60 and 100) are important for some reason. This ring, perceptually forms a white "fog", "noise" or "mist" around the vessel. It creates an inference which blocks something. The energetics are perceived to pulsate back and forth; it creates an interference but also "senses" at the same time.

-- There are a number of long, black tubes or cylinders wrapped in green and stacked width-wise within the hold area. They are stacked in groups of three with the upper tube having a larger diameter than the two lower tubes. These tubes are perceived to be "components" of some kind of "system". These tubes or cylinders are moved from a horizontal orientation to that of a vertical one. Then they are placed within a larger, hollow tube and lifted upwards.

-- Other concepts associated with the general target but not necessarily related to one another are:

- Someone is perceived saying "You're hurtin me. Your hurting me".
- The smell of dried fish or squid and "birds singing".
- Some sort of relationship to the term "Syrian".
- The smell of oil.
- A spring-like object slowing uncoiling and recoiling (enclosure 1a).
