

Arrest a 'large first step'

REPAIRING THE WORLD TRADE CENTER, 5A

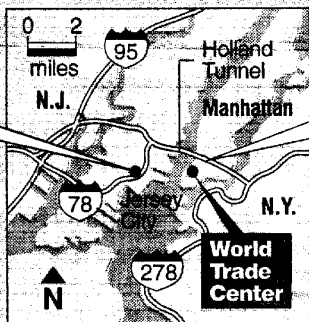

Break in case points to Muslim radicals

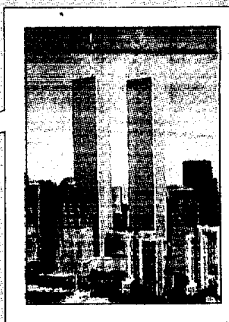

By Paul Hurschmann, AP
THE MOSQUE: Mohammed Salameh, arrested in connection with World Trade Center blast, worshipped at third-floor Masjid Alsalam Mosque, above, in Jersey City, N.J.

By Marilyn Church, AP
THE SUSPECT: Mohammed Salameh at arraignment Thursday in New York. Salameh is held without bail.

By Marty Baumann, USA TODAY

AP

THE ROUTE: Officials investigating the New York bombing were pleasantly surprised by break that led them to N.J.

By Bethany Kandel and Bruce Frankel
 USA TODAY

NEW YORK — The FBI the wake of an arrest Thursday, continues to seek 1 suspects in the bombing of World Trade Center.

"This investigation clear not finished, but a large step has been taken," Jim head of the FBI's New York office, said Thursday night.

The bomb exploded in garage of the 110-story towers a week ago, killing people; one is still missing.

Mohammed Salameh was arrested after he tried to reclaim a deposit on a van that linked him to the

A second man was arrested and charged with obstructing justice in connection with search warrant.

Prior to his arraignment Salameh is an 18-year-old born Arab and described as a Muslim fundamentalist.

He was charged with:
 ▶ Aiding and abetting bombing and fire.
 ▶ Transportation of explosives across state lines.

He appeared calm but during the hearing as charges were read in Atlantic City, N.J., Salameh is being held without bail.

"The hysteria that is surrounding this case is evidence at the hearing," Robert Precht, Salameh's court-appointed lawyer. Other suspects are sought in what prosecutors call "the single most destructive act of terrorism ever committed on American soil."

Thursday's arrest was expected; a day earlier authorities had said the might drag on for months. FBI agents arrested Salameh about 10:30 a.m. at a stop near a Jersey City truck rental agency.

He went there to reclaim $400 deposit on the van, which he had reported stolen through the blast.

The FBI said the van was one that carried the bomb. Fragments — including an axle with a traceable identification number — were recovered at the blast site.

Traces of nitrates — found in some explosives — were reportedly found on papers Salameh presented to the agency.

Traces of nitrates were found at the blast site. A telephone number Salameh used when he rented the van led agents to an apartment where they found tools, and instructions on bombing, Fox said.

Also: a specially trained dog detected explosives in a

Linked to the bombing

Mohammed Salameh, the suspect arraigned Thursday in the bombing of the World Trade Center, was arrested while trying to reclaim his $400 deposit on the Ryder rental van police recovered the explosives. The Ford E350 Econoline van: 6.5 ft.

Vehicle weight empty	5,500 lbs.
Maximum cargo weight	2,200 lbs. (The contents of a two-bedroom apartment)
Maximum cargo capacity	254 cubic ft.

COVER STORY

Cleric target of previous FBI probes

World Trade Center seen as 'symbol of the U.S.'

▶ Following the clues, 3A

By Judy Keen and Sam Vincent Meddis
 USA TODAY

The Masjid Alsalam Mosque got scant attention from its neighbors in downtown Jersey City, N.J. — a check-cashing business, toy store and Chinese restaurant.

But three Islamic fundamentalists linked to violent crimes found their way to the rundown building and climbed two flights of stairs to worship — and perhaps to talk of violence and revenge.

Mohammed Salameh, arrested Thursday in the World Trade Center bombing, worshipped there.

Sheikh Omar Abdel Rahman, a blind Muslim cleric acquitted in Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat's 1981 murder, prayed