

~~SECRET~~

(b)(1)
(b)(3)

VOL. 47, NO. 2, 2003
CLASSIFIED EDITION

INTELLIGENCE TODAY AND TOMORROW

On the Front Lines

The CIA in Afghanistan, 2001-2002

Insights from the April 2001 EP-3 Incident

Comparing Commercial and National Satellite Imagery

Michael L. Fabbriante

Bridging the Great Divide

A Cryptologist Encounters the Human Side of Intelligence

HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES

Valid Defector or Provocation?

Sifting the Evidence on Vitaliy Yurchenko

Intelligence Missteps

Kurt Waldheim and the Central Intelligence Agency

Science and Tradecraft

Origins and Applications of Nuclear Intelligence

Henry S. Lowenhaupt

APPROVED FOR RELEASE
DATE: 03-Sep-2010

INTELLIGENCE IN RECENT LITERATURE

Into Tibet: The CIA's First Atomic Spy [redacted]

Reviewed by Nicholas Dujmovic

Red Spy Queen: A Biography of Elizabeth Bentley [redacted]

Reviewed by Michael Warner

The Spy Who Seduced America: Lies and Betrayal in the Heat of the Cold War—

The Judith Coplon Story (U)

Reviewed by Hayden B. Peake

The Intelligence Officer's Bookshelf [redacted]

Compiled and Reviewed by Hayden B. Peak

Studies Page | CSI Homepage

~~SECRET~~ [redacted]