E. HEINE'S BALLOON ACCION

Intended to send to Estonia an anthology of nationalistic poetry

A recent "Free Estonian" announcement that Artur Haman, who was active in the Estonian community in Sweden as a convinced nationalist, but later turned out to be a Soviet agent, proposed to Estonians to make a beat trip to the coastal waters of occupied Estonia for the purpose of sending propaganda material into Estonia with balloons, has brought questions from readers - has not Eerik Heine been connected with similar activities?

This question has been treated in a lengthy article about Eerik Heine in Washington's major morning paper, the Evening Star, by its reporter, Orr Kelly, where he writes among other things: "He, (Heine) has attempted, without noticcable success, to obtain support for his plan to send propaganda material into Estonia with balloons. He hopes to continue this project when his lawsuit against Baue is over.

According to what the "Free Estonian" has heard, E. Heine began to express such thoughts already several years ago, soon after his entry into the free world. This question was under consideration in circles of the Estonian Central Council in Canada.

Forth Meine intended to publish an anthology of emigre mentionalistic poetry and intended to send these to occupied Estonia either by way of S eden or Western Germany. A proposal was made through the further, Arved Viirlaid, for the composition of such an anthology to poet, summer bja, who lives in Toronto. The latter prepared on approximately 90-page menu secupt.

Early Heine hoped that the necessary lands for publishing could be obtained from local businessmen, which plan, however, did not materialize.

It has been heard that Eerik Heine attempted to establish contact with persons who had previously used balloons to send books to Estonia. They, however, informed their contact in Toronto that E. Heine in their opinion was not adequately trustworthy for such cooperation.
