

~~SECRET~~Several Observations -

(b)(3)

1. It is now generally considered probable that human emotions are the factor which creates the telepathic bond.

a. Clive Barker, one of Britain's foremost lie detector experts has demonstrated in hundreds of experiments that plants react to emotional stress in people even when the people are at a distance.

b. On a recent T.V. special on channel 5 (The Weird World of Weird) Dr. Waugh, a parapsychologist from U. of California, demonstrated, overcome, that emotionally stimulating material (Walt's riot scenes) was relatively easy to transmit telepathically.

c. Experiments by Dr. Seageyer of Tringrad on the Psychokinetic phenomena, have repeatedly demonstrated that the Telekineticist Kulagina is only able to give laboratory evidence of her ability to move objects when she has worked herself up to a "stress alarm" reaction - a highly emotional state. Dr. Bender of Freiburg University has also found the same correspondence between the intense emotional state and the PK phenomena in spontaneous cases. In laboratory experiments Dr. Bender has noted that one individual suspected of causing PK phenomena only showed above average ESP scores when under emotional stress.

2. The level of success of both the Russian and American ESP/PK experiments is such that even a conservative person would expect the use of ESP/PK as a cold war weapon by 1975. This would only be likely against a few high priority targets whose conventional methods will not obtain the desired results. Because of the nature of the phenomena persons under stress will be most susceptible - for example DEFSMAK personnel or Soviet War Room personnel.

Why would the Russians use such means - It costs little; they are willing to lose; an attack is very difficult to detect; the loss is not measurable - like movement insensitible to our Soviet friends.

Notes on Nature of possible attacks against DEFSMAC

1. Soviet intelligence would provide trained psychics with photographs of selected personnel - Those who are the most likely to develop an intense stress alarm response while under pressure. Also they will probably include small personal items i.e., cufflinks, tie pins ties etc.
2. Right before a Soviet missile test the psychics will begin timing on their targets.
3. As the missile test begins American reactions must be at their peak of efficiency this causes maximum pressure and therefore maximum susceptibility.
4. At this time the Soviets will probably attempt to transmit
 - a. a feeling of illness - which they have successfully done
 - b. confusing factual information to lessen efficiency of decision making
 - c. lies concerning serious injury to members of DEFSMAC personnel is familiar - This is done to cause an increase in the stress alarm reaction of the person already under pressure so that he will be confused and unable to function properly and even to perhaps cause him to send out PK energy which often causes electrical apparatus to fail, lights to blow out fuses to blow etc.
5. After the fact Soviet intelligence personnel would monitor conversations of the DEFSMAC participants on board, porters, on their cars on buses to see if the crew experienced any special difficulties during the test period.
6. During the test Soviet Sigint might detect evidence of success from intercepted chatter concerning circuit outages or general confusion by the personnel themselves.

NOTES: // SIGINT / COMSEC ESP UAS

1. Soviets have tested interception of Telepathy transmissions, they claim these tests were successful.
2. Soviet tests whose reported results suggest the ability to make people sick at a distance by Telepathy could be used [if the claims are true] to degrade communications operators' reliability.
3. Random guess experiments both here and abroad indicate ESP may be used to significantly whittle down the work factors of some cryptosystems.
4. Soviet use of a new "Artificial Resonance" hypnotic technique shows promise as a means of enhancing or promoting full development of ESP and other parapsychically related talents.
5. Soviet and German research on Psychokinesis indicates that such mental energy could be used to degrade the effectiveness of communications equipment.
6. The quality of present Soviet research indicates that ESP will be a dependable secret tool by 1980.
