Mr. Vasilu Cluj said that he recently received a letter from General Radescu in which he said that after his visit with the King, he considers that there exists an accord for enlarging the National Committee, on the condition that the political parties ask for this also. He was asked to delay his departure from Italy. They want him to remain here and organize the "Rumanian Congress in Exile." In this sense General Radescu asked the aid of several representative persons here, especially of the National Peasant Party. General Radescu went to the home of lawyer M., and asked his aid in regard to this organization. The Congress will consist of those staying here, as well as those representatives of the people or of organizations from different countries with Rumanian emmigration. The aim of the Congress will be to determine the current opinions in emigration, in view of the reform in the National Committee, whose aim is to get a larger representation (important members of the National Peasant Party the different political groups of different ideas in exile), as well as representatives of culture and of the workers.

Likewise, the Congress will have to designate an emigration committee, through whose channel any fund destined for the refugees will be taken care of, as well as to supervise its distribution. The Congress would forbid any contributor to give aid to an individual, it would also forbid those who hold these funds to use them other than through their intermediary.

The founders of the Congress consider that there exists today a National Committee without any foundation and without any contact with the masses of emigration. This Committee does not have contact with Rumania because it is impossible, ^{and} it also does not have contact with the masses. In this situation it does not represent anything. The Congress will create harmony among the emigration and will submit to the King a concrete program.

For the present tentative proposals are being made to attract the various organizations or persons in emigration. The National Peasant Party is depending on the aid of those who ^{have} recently arrived. Daily contact is maintained between ~~M. Bantu~~ and Vasiliu Cluj. The actual committee is depending on the hostile group; it is felt that ~~Comaniciu~~ ^{for} desires to be the representative of a wing, with its own ideology, in the National Peasant Party.
