As a recap, you informed [redacted] via a phone conversation that the issue was not due to an attack against the web page, but in fact an error in the coding that has since been resolved. Hello,

As you are aware, the FOIA.CIA.GOV site has been hit earlier in the month by Denial of Service attacks.

This note is to inform you that the FOIA.CIA.GOV site has been attacked [redacted] last night, Thursday (June 19th), around 9:30pm. The attack did take down the site. When you go to the site the only thing that you see is a page of unrecognizable text. The site is completely unavailable.

(b)(3)

[redacted] We are working with [redacted] our current hosting company, to restore the site to a previous version. So far, we have attempted to restore the server to two different snapshots from June, with complete restarts of the server each time. Neither attempt was successful. Our next steps are to move farther back in time to May to see if we can restore to that point in time. The issue has been raised [redacted]

(b)(3)

(b)(3)

Please let [redacted] or I know if you need further information.

(b)(3)

Thank you.
